Next Tuesday we are having an LGBTQ 101 with information about the community at Notre Dame and the model as well as learning more about what the acronym means. We have an RSVP so go to the GRC website. After fall break, we are bringing Deacon Ray Dever who has a transgender daughter and he will be talking about what that looks like and share his story. On Halloween, we will have Fall Fest. There, we will have cookie decorating, pumpkin decorating, making stuffed animals, and fall-themed treats.
- xvii. James Bathon- What was the last event?
- xviii. Sara- Come to do any of the events, put on by each of the student groups in the GRC.

xix. Sara - I brought brochures on allyship and ways to be a good ally.

Additional information on the website so if you want to host something in your hall, we can come into your dorms and talk about intersectionality or allyship. We also have student peer educators who can come do things such as going to Moreau classes.

xx. Patrick - If someone were to take an action step to be an ally?

xxi. Sara- This is how we would put this into action. GreenNDot teaches us to distract, delegate, and direct. The beauty of being an ally is educating yourself and being an ally is putting this into action and how we can step in and help. What are the best ways to check-in directly with one another? The best thing is putting this into action and GreenDot is great for any instance if someone is harmed or upset for any reason, how can we check-in or report that. Report at SpeakUp@nd.edu. If someone says an insensitive joke, how can we challenge that or change the conversation? These things are open for everyone, and the key is working together to establish inclusivity.
