    1. Michael J. Palumbo Award
      - a) Thomas Davis wins
    2. Irish Clover \(Student\) Award
      - a) Debate
        - (1) Benjamin Erhardt: How does the voting work?
        - (2) Annika Barron: If we get two votes, is it two people?
        - (3) Madison Nemeth: You get to vote for your top two, followed by debate, and then another vote.
        - (4) Thomas Davis: If there was a person I would vote for the Palumbo award, it would be Matthew. A lot of things you affirmed in what I did were a product of the environment Matthew set up. I was very surprised to not see their name on the list of nominations, and the Student Union would be remiss to not acknowledge them. The way that Matthew has been able to touch so many lives in a way that is so humble and so kind has touched my life. I would ask you to recognize Matthew for this award.

(5) Benjamin Erhardt: All of these nominees have done a phenomenal job of serving the student union.

b) Matthew Bisner wins

3. Nancy J. Walsh Irish Clover \(Staff\) Award

a) Debate

(1) Annika Barron: Dr. Michael does a great job connecting with students. Her research focuses on adverse child experiences and connects the student body with the community we live in.

(2) Paul Stoller: I'm voting for Nhat because he was my Moreau professor. Being rector is a difficult job and the way he goes about it is so personal.

(3) Allan Njomo: I want to second what Paul said. Nhat is the jack of all trades and builds community by DJing or taking pictures for all dorms. He goes beyond Duncan Hall.

(4) Annika Barron: Earlier this year, Duncan hosted a mass for Duncan students and alumni who knew a Duncan resident who had passed away.

- (5) Thomas Davis: Rectors have been under a lot of fire, so I think it's important to recognize rectors who go out of their way to make the Notre Dame experience what it is.
- b) Nhat Nguyen wins.
4. Frank O'Malley Undergraduate Teaching Award
- a) Abraham Figueroa: I would like to nominate Professor Munoz.
- b) Debate
- (1) Annika Barron: Dr. Sedmak's classes are super engaging. He also puts a lot of effort into learning outside of class as leader of the Nanovic Institute.
- (2) Caroline Cameron: Zachary Kowaleski is a genius and so smart. I took an audit class with him and it was his first year teaching it. He is really passionate.
- (3) Madeline Kosobucki: Eric Bugyis is super understanding and a great professor.
- (4) Abraham Figueroa: Professor Munoz's scholarship has been cited at the Supreme Court. His dedication to his work is astonishing. He has shaped my career.
- (5) Martha Castellini: I want to put a word in for Kristin Lewis. She is an angel to work with and cares for her students.
- (6) Emma Eckstein: I want to second Kristin Lewis. She always went above and beyond.

- (7) Benjamin Erhardt: Kerry Meyers leads the women in engineering program. She helped me narrow down what I wanted to study.
- (8) Matthew Bisner: Pam Butler consistently puts in effort to check in with students and how they were doing in my Zoom class. They used a ton of different modules and technology to keep us engaged. They consistently knitted with prisoners and brought gender studies to prisoners. They constantly check in with us.
- (9) Thomas Davis: John Deak has done work in trying to limit the amount of credits first years can take. He is involved in ways that aren't just thinking of himself. He lives in Dunne Hall and seeks to foster education. I think that shows a lot about his dedication.
- (10) Paul Stoller: Carl Ackerman is a standout human being. He knows your name and where you're from.
- (11) Abraham Figueroa: Carl Ackerman wants what's best for you.
- (12) Benjamin Erhardt: My job last year working at ND studios included filming Carl's class. You could tell he wanted to do as much as he could.
- (13) Matthew Bisner: When we were sent home in 2020, Pam Butler helped me assist people on their way home.

Pam will sit down with you and ask how the class is going and how the material is. Professor John's leadership on first year course credit was an impetus. He is very interested in what students need and want.
